A BEGINNER’S GUIDE TO HERITAGEQUEST
Cass County Public Library – Genealogy Branch

What is HeritageQuest?
HeritageQuest is a genealogy database powered by Ancestry, so it will look very familiar to users of Ancestry or Ancestry Library Edition. Because it is a library database, CCPL patrons have free access to the millions of records available through our subscription. Though not as comprehensive as Ancestry Library Edition, HeritageQuest does have census records, select immigration and military records, city directories, family history books, and more.

Accessing HeritageQuest
Through the Cass County Public Library website, patrons have free access to HeritageQuest from a library computer and from home. Because the database can be accessed from a home computer, HeritageQuest serves as an alternative to Ancestry Library Edition when patrons cannot visit the library. As with Ancestry, patrons must use the link provided on the library’s genealogy databases page (www.casscolibrary.org/genealogy/databases). This process is shown below.

Step 1: Click on the Genealogy tab in the navigation bar at the top of the page

Step 2: From the Genealogy Resources home page, click on the green Databases tile.

Step 3: Click on the blue HeritageQuest link in the Library Databases section.
Navigating HeritageQuest
Below is the home page; from here, you can navigate the database with the tabs at the top of the page and quick links to search specific record collections or record types.

Quick Links
At the bottom of the home page, you will find quick links to various collections on HeritageQuest. These help you navigate the database quicker and more efficiently. Clicking on one of the quick links will take you to the search page for that record collection.

Quick Links to Record Collections

Search Individual Years of the Census

Search page

Research guides, similar to Ancestry’s Learning Center

Census Maps [see page 7]
Searching on HeritageQuest
To search within a specific record type or collection, click on the Search Now or the title of the collection on the Search page.[below]

Military record collections available on HeritageQuest include:
- Revolutionary War Pensions
- Confederate Prisoners of War
- Veteran records for specific states
Select international service records

Immigration record collections available on HeritageQuest include:
- Bremen Departure Lists
- Naturalizations for New Jersey, Ohio, Minnesota, Texas, Washington, and West Virginia
Select international immigration and citizenship records
Select Ohio Naturalization Records, 1800-1977 from the search page.[below].

Search Tip: As with searches on Ancestry, it may be more effective to start with a basic search and add more information and filters as you go. After entering your ancestor’s information into the search form and clicking the Search button, you can then browse the results for a record that you would like to view.[below]. Click on View Record to see more detailed information on the record summary page.

Because this record collection is not digitized, there is no image to view.

Digitized collections will have an image thumbnail here. Click on it to view and save the image in the viewer.

Click Send Document to send a link to this page in an email to yourself or someone else. You will be prompted to enter an email address.

To print this page, click View printer-friendly and print from that page.
Searching within a Specific Year/Schedule of the Census
The home page provides quick links to the search forms for specific years of the Federal Census. You can also get to the search form for an individual year or non-population schedule of the census from the general census search page [below].

You can either click on the View all collections link [left] or scroll to the bottom of the page.

Scroll through the list of individual census years and schedules until you locate the specific collection you want to search [right].

Searching this way allows you to filter out census records from years you may already have or simply do not want to see included in your search results.

Instead of having to filter out those results, you can limit your results from the beginning for quicker and more efficient searching.

Example: Selecting the collection from the list above allows you to see only results that match your search terms from the Mortality Schedules of the Census [left] and nothing else.
Viewing and Saving Digitized Images

Example: Widow’s Pension Application File; Benjamin Scrivner, 1833

Accessing the Image
From the record summary page, you can view a scanned image of the record (if that record has been digitized) by clicking on the green View button on the image thumbnail.

If you are using HeritageQuest away from home, you can also send a link to this page to yourself or another person via email with the Send Document button and access the digital image the same way later.

Using the Image Viewer
The Image Viewer on HeritageQuest is identical to the viewer on Ancestry. It has the same functions and save options.

Back to the Record Summary Page
Save Options (to computer or storage device)
Full screen view
Toggles transcription panel on/off
Tools (Print)
Zoom (use the slider for more control)
Use the arrows to move forward or back a single image (helpful when browsing)

Filmstrip [see page 7]
Image Number (and total # of images)
Using the Thumbnail Filmstrip
If you are browsing a collection or viewing a record with multiple images, as in this example, you can use the filmstrip to move quickly through a collection. Rather than using the arrows in the viewer that only move page at a time, use the filmstrip arrows to view the next or previous eight pages simultaneously.

Click on the filmstrip icon to view or hide the filmstrip.

You can manually enter an image number to jump to that page.

Placing your mouse over a thumbnail in the filmstrip [right] gives you a larger preview of the page without having to click on it first.

U.S. Federal Census Maps, 1790-1920

This page allows you to view states as they were mapped out during individual census years and how it compares to modern maps. This is especially helpful for areas where county borders and names changed over time.

It also provides information on the availability of individual years of the census for specific counties.

Click on a state in the map above to open the window seen to the right.

Select the years listed on the left side of the window to view the map for that year of the census.

Check for notes that provide additional contextual information.

At the bottom of the window, you will find information about that state, including missing years or counties.
Family History Books and Directories
Search HeritageQuest’s collection of thousands of digitized family and local history books.

Searching by Person
Selecting the People tab from the top of the books search page will give you a search form very similar to a record collection search form.

You can search for individual people mentioned in the text of the books by name, vital information, with family members, year of publication, keyword, and gender. Try combining these filters in different ways to see how it affects your results.

Note: As always, the more information you enter, the more narrow you search will be.

Searching by Publication
Selecting the Publications tab from the top of the books search page will give you a search form similar to a Card Catalog search form.

You can search the collection by title, author, year of publication, subject, and location.

This type of search helps if you want to browse all titles in the collection or have a specific title in mind.

Note: As always, the more information you enter, the more narrow you search will be.

Searching City Directories
Selecting the City Directories tab from the top of the page will give you a search form very similar to a record collection search form.

You can search the directory collection by name, residence location and year, with a spouse, keyword, publication title (if you know the title of the directory), and gender.

If you are using directories for the first time, view the guide provided in the top right corner: 6 Things to Find in City Directories.
Viewing Digital Books

By default, your search results will display as a list of titles arranged as Categories [below]. To view thumbnails of the individual results click on Records. Or you can click on a title in the list to view the results from that book.
